

Azkatz Publishing Services 2018 Spring Newsletter

As we look forward to spring, we notice all kinds of things popping up in our backyards. Some are the not so welcome weeds, while some occasions such as the arrivals of hummingbirds are more than welcome. New this spring, AZKatz Publishing wishes to announce a new author into the fold. If you happen to be local or close to Alamogordo, New Mexico, you will have an opportunity to meet Constance when she joins Jay Brenner in Cloudcroft for the Mayfair event. Both will be signing their books.

Now, a bit about Constance and her new children's book, Calico Chicken. Calico Chicken is the true story of a kitten that was born under a hen house in Apache Junction, Arizona. She grew up with the baby chicks after she lost her mother, and considered the chickens to be her family.

The story of the Calico Chicken stayed with Constance Nipper for many years before she decided to put pen to paper. Over a decade ago, she left Apache Junction, and moved to New Mexico, where she stays busy reading, volunteering, and trying her hand at various crafts, which include crocheting and making her own greeting cards. The many animals she shared her life with in Apache Junction gave her enough fodder to someday be able to pen many more stories.

While attending Mayfair, Jay will showcase not only Shelly's Flight, a David Morrell Award Finalist, her Midnight Blue trilogy, and several other of her books.

Although Jay's intention was to venture into another genre, it seems she has found the characters in Shelly's Flight insisting their story not end here. Because of this, Jay hopes to have Under the Desert Sun completed by this time next spring.

Nestled in the Tularosa Basin are the shifting White Sands, which jealously hoards secrets, many preserved by the rain shadow created by the Sacramento Mountains.

Shelly Brown and Trever Callahan struggle to find normalcy in their lives after one White Sands secret was exposed and the small town turned against the Brown family and nearly destroyed them.

The town has healed, now it's Trever and Shelly's turn to look to their future and find balance between their personal life and their demanding jobs that seem to constantly separate the pair.
